Traditional Healing in the Workplace

Poor work performance can, at times, be related to matters of the spirit. Spiritual awakenings and episodes are often misunderstood and incorrectly interpreted using the guidelines of western medicine. This is when in fact the problem requires a different kind of intervention Apart from affecting our social lives they can also affect our ability to work at our best.

We conduct research and develop content around understanding the manifestation of spiritual awakenings in the work place and how to overcome them. What Employers have a better understanding and will therefore not risk losing an employer. The career path of an employee is not reduced but rather enhanced and they are left in the best possible position to excell at work.

Traditional Healing in Schools and University

Poor academic performance, misbehaviour and poor conduct can, at times, be related to matters of the spirit. Children and the youth are the most vulnerable to spiritual matters. This is mostly because they are also at the mercy of the decisions taken by their parents or legal guardians. Because these matters are misunderstood, a western medical approach is taken in helping the child or even worse they risk losing their place.

We have experience in dealing with these issues which befall university students and scholars. Our longest standing relationship is with the Univeristy of Kwa Zulu Natal, in which we have assisted students and academic staff. When the education board members have a better understanding, they will not risk losing an exceptionla student. The academic future of a a child is not reduced but rather enhanced and they are left in the best possible position to excell.

Expert Opinon

When it comes to matters of african culture, practice and healing, it can be hard to difficult to source empircial evidence justifying a particular course of action. That is why an expert opinon should be from an organisation which has extensive literature, resarch and content on these matters. Umsamo has been doing exactly this for over a decade. Our opinion is applicable in the matters of customary law, family conflict and contestation resolution and commentray on current affairs. Our experts are both acaedmically accomplished and experieneced.
